

BioForum – Central European Forum of Biotechnology and Innovative BioEconomy

BioForum - Central European Forum of Biotechnology and Innovative BioEconomy is the biggest and the most important international event for biotechnology in the region of Central Europe. More than 1500 participants representing 20 countries, 100 exhibitors, over 100 R&D projects presented, more than 900 business meetings within the frames of BioPartnering – these are only some of the results of the 9th edition of BioForum.

The main goal of BioForum is to create business networking between growing Central European and well-established US as well as Western European biobusiness. It is an event supporting technology transfer from life sciences (biotechnology, biochemistry, molecular biology, etc.) to areas such as bioeconomy, health, drugs and food production. BioForum visitors are given a unique possibility to drive into sea of valuable, applicable R&D projects gathered in one place at the same time.

BioForum is not only an opportunity for biobusiness leaders – students will find many satellite events organised especially for them:

- JobVector Carrier Day
- Conference and discussion panel for young scientists and students organised by Academic Students' Society of Biotechnology and the Young European Biotech Network
- BioCompetition

Students, among all, will have the possibility to exchange information, experience and make contacts that will help them in their future professional life.

BioForum 2011 will be already 10th edition of biobusiness meeting, during which Central European bioeconomy along with an innovative and booming Asian biotech will be presented. The organisers would like to invite University staff and students to participate in this unique event that will take place in Łódź, Poland on 11th-12th of May 2011.
